open to the legal community.

As our world grows increasingly interconnected, disputes frequently involve issues with foreign parties or foreign law. In addition, businesses involved in international transactions frequently choose to avoid national courts entirely and refer their disputes to international arbitration. In this seminar, seasoned international practitioners will offer their guidance on:

- Serving foreign parties
- Obtaining international discovery
- Arguing foreign law in U.S. courts
- Enforcing U.S. court judgments against foreign parties
- Arbitrating international disputes

Don't miss this opportunity to have your questions addressed and to network with other practitioners in your area of practice.
